There once was a box of coloured shapes.
They were happy souls until an army Sergeant Major came to put them through a drill.

The Sergeant Major shouted loud, which made them shake with fear,
“I want you horrid little lot to line up over here!”

Clive the square, jumped up first to show him he was keen.
His four sides were always straight, and beautifully clean.

Tilly the triangle played in the marching band. The Sergeant Major loved her - thought her three sides were so grand.

Cecil the circle rolled along, arriving slightly late. He was rounder than the others, on account of what he ate!
